As adults juggling family, career, and Sai Center/community responsibilities, we often struggle to find balance. The need to excel in all spheres can result in stress, guilt, or a breakdown in relationships. It goes without saying that establishing a sustainable work-life-community balance is important for our physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. Join us, as our panel discusses several successful strategies of how to achieve this balance; increase personal well-being, develop strong family relationships, and enhance professional success.
